

Their Precarious Horizons
Anne Dale
2012
Oil on canvas
48" x 84"

Chapter 7
The Architects of the Boreal Yells
Moving from Government to Governance

"A more engaged, connected Canadian government that's smarter about what it does, connected and communicating with its citizens through diverse channels, using big data to enhance civic literacy, is a better alternative to the use of subsidies, competing needs toward authoritarianism, literacy, respect of facts and evidence, and growing public dissent. Let's work with a House of Commons transformed to lead experimental and conversational public spaces, reintroducing civil discourse and literacy. We all need to learn our parts forward as we collectively continue to search for solutions to climate change adaptation and mitigation, a carbon neutral economy, and become a world leader in sustainable community development —sustainability for all, we mean!" (p. 108)

— Anne Dale, Edging Forward

Economic Of The Real
Anne Dale
2012
Oil on canvas
48" x 84"

Chapter 6
The Three Truths Under the Bridge
Barriers to Change

"The definition of human wellbeing is at the heart of the matter. The relevance of economic performance is that it must be viewed as a means to an end, and that the market is an imperfect allocation mechanism. That end is neither the consumption of beef burgers, nor the accumulation of television sets, nor the control of inflation rates, but rather the welfare of human societies. Some argue that economic performance matters only insofar as it makes people happier. A broader concept of wellbeing requires a more complex and nuanced analysis, provided through a more basic of research into what factors support happiness and how this relates to economic growth, as well as bracketed mainstream measures of what constitutes progress beyond the GDP" (p. 93)

— Anne Dale, Edging Forward

Please come in enjoy a short

231

