S: OK, Harvey Steeves. My family came here a few years ago. My great-great grandfather was Henry Steeves and he was one of the fathers of confederation. In the picture, he sits on the far left, front row, at the front. Him and John A. were great whiskey drinkers. The other brothers, they were merchant men and they came around to the Pacific coast here. They landed at Steveston. So, that's my history with Canada and it's. Unfortunately it's going down the tube. Too much, too many liberals. And yeah, like you're better off being the nicest bun-maker than a Canadian veteran.
